Curriculum Vitae

Personal Information

Name: Xu Li
Gender: Male
Institute of Logic and Cognition, Zhejiang University
866 Yuhangtang Road, Hangzhou 310058, P.R. China
Email: xuli7997@gmail.com

Education and Learning

Zhejiang University, Hangzhou, China
Master of Philosophy (M.Phil.) June, 2021
Supervisor: Yì N. Wáng

South China Normal University, Guangzhou, China
Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.) June, 2018

I have knowledge in the following areas:

– First-order logic
– Modal logic
– Nonclassical logic
– Neighbourhood semantics
– Algorithms and computational complexity
– Non-monotonic logic and argumentation theory, etc

Below are some courses I have taken:

– Fundamentals of Modal Logic (0411203) Winter 2018
– Fundamentals of Mathematical Logic (0421202) Winter 2018
– LaTeX and Academic Writing (0413155) Winter 2018
– Frontiers of Modal Logic (0413154) Spring 2019
– Logic and Game Theory Summer 2019
– Logic in AI (0413153) Fall and Winter 2019, Fall and Winter 2020

Research

My current research topics include:

– Epistemic logic (all my publications are in this field)
– Logics for social networks (this is the theme of my master thesis)

Blow are my publications:

[1] Y. N. Wáng and X. Li, "A logic of knowledge based on abstract arguments", Journal of Logic and Computation, Jan. 2021, exab002.

[2] X. Li and Y. N. Wáng, "A logic of knowledge and belief based on abstract arguments", in Logic and Argumentation, M. Dastani, H. Dong, and L. van der Torre, Eds., Cham: Springer International Publishing, 2020, pp. 116–130, ISBN: 978-3-030-44638-3.

Academic and Teaching Activities

Subreviewer of the following conferences:

– KR2020
– AAMAS2020

Teaching Assistant of the following courses at Zhejiang University:

– Introduction to Logic (041A9180)
– Nonclassical Logic (04129760)
– Fundamentals of Mathematical Logic (0421202)
– Social Networks (04198250)
– Epistemic Logic (PHIL3001)

Awards

– First prize in the 13th graduates' symposium of School of Humanities, Zhejiang University (November 2020)